LANDSCAPES OF PILGRIMAGE IN MEDIEVAL BRITAIN

Martin Locker

Archaeopress Archaeology
Contents

Acknowledgements ......................................................................................................................... v

Chapter 1: The Purpose and the Pilgrim ....................................................................................... 1
  1.1 Research Aims .......................................................................................................................... 1
  1.2 Structure of Book ..................................................................................................................... 1
  1.3 What is Pilgrimage? .................................................................................................................. 2
  1.4 Pilgrimage in the Medieval West ........................................................................................... 3
  1.5 Travel in the Medieval West ..................................................................................................... 7

Chapter 2: The Pilgrim's Presence in Scholarship ...................................................................... 11
  2.1 Theorising Pilgrimage – The Current Dialogue .................................................................... 11
  2.2 Medieval Pilgrimage in the Archaeological and Historical Record ........................................ 14
  2.3 Liminality, Movement and the Landscape ............................................................................. 18
  2.4 Methodology: The Need for a New Approach ....................................................................... 20

Chapter 3: Ely to Walsingham .................................................................................................. 27
  3.1 Introduction to the case study ................................................................................................. 27
  3.2 The Landscape of Medieval Norfolk: Environmental, Economic and Ecclesiastical .......... 28
  3.3 The Road Network of Medieval Norfolk ................................................................................ 29
  3.4 The Cult of Our Lady of Walsingham: Origins, Growth and The Shrine ............................... 34
  3.5 The Distribution of Pilgrim Souvenirs Relating to the Walsingham Cult ................................. 40
  3.6 The Archaeological and Etymological Remnants of Pilgrimage Between Ely and Walsingham 44
  3.7 Pre-Reformation churches in Norfolk: their dedications, role in the parish, and relevance to pilgrims 50
  3.8 The Sensory Dialogue Between the Pilgrim and the Landscape from Ely to Walsingham ........ 53
  3.9 Conclusions ............................................................................................................................. 61

Chapter 4: Salisbury to Winchester ............................................................................................ 62
  4.1 Introduction to the case study ................................................................................................. 62
  4.2 The Landscape of Medieval Wiltshire and Hampshire: Environmental, Economic and Ecclesiastical 62
  4.3 The Road Network of Medieval Wiltshire and Hampshire ..................................................... 68
  4.4 The Cult of St Swithun: Origins, Growth and the Shrine ....................................................... 70
  4.5 The Distribution of Pilgrim Souvenirs and Relics Relating to the Swithun Cult ....................... 77
  4.6 The Archaeological and Etymological Remnants of Pilgrimage between Salisbury and Winchester 80
  4.7 Pre-Reformation churches in Wiltshire and Hampshire: Their Dedications, Role in the Parish, and Relevance to Pilgrims 85
  4.8 The Sensory Dialogue Between the Pilgrim and the Landscape from Salisbury to Winchester . 87
  4.9 Conclusions ............................................................................................................................. 97

Chapter 5: St Asaph to Holywell ................................................................................................ 98
  5.1 Introduction to the case study ................................................................................................. 98
  5.2 The Landscape of Medieval Denbighshire and Flintshire: Environmental, Economic and Ecclesiastical 98
  5.3 The Road Network of Medieval North Wales ....................................................................... 103
  5.4 The Cult of St Winefride: Origins, Growth and the Shrine ................................................... 105
  5.5 The Archaeological and Etymological Remnants of Pilgrimage Between St Asaph and Holywell 109
  5.6 Pre-Reformation churches in Denbighshire and Flintshire: Their Dedications, Role in the Parish, and Relevance to Pilgrims 114
  5.7 The Sensory Dialogue Between the Pilgrim and the Landscape from St Asaph to Holywell .... 116
  5.8 Conclusions ............................................................................................................................. 120

Chapter 6: Camelford to Bodmin .............................................................................................. 122
  6.1 Introduction to the case study ............................................................................................... 122
  6.2 The Landscape of Medieval Cornwall: Environmental, Ecclesiastical and Economic ......... 122
  6.3 The Road Network of Medieval Cornwall ......................................................................... 127
  6.4 The Distribution of Pilgrim Souvenirs and Relics Relating to the Petroc Cult ....................... 139
  6.5 The Archaeological and Etymological Remnants of Pilgrimage Between Camelford and Bodmin 141
6.7 Pre-Reformation churches in Cornwall: Their Dedications, Role in the Parish, and Relevance to Pilgrims ...... 146
6.8 The Sensory Dialogue Between the Pilgrim and the Landscape from Camelford to Bodmin......................... 148
6.9 Conclusions ............................................................................................................................................ 156

Chapter 7: Responses, the Pilgrim Experience and Cultural Comparisons ..................................................... 158

7.1 Introduction ............................................................................................................................................ 158
7.2 Response to Research Questions and Methodology ............................................................................... 158
7.3 The Landscape and the Monument ....................................................................................................... 160
7.4 Possessions, the Personal Element & Post-Pilgrimage ...................................................................... 168
7.5 Beyond the Borders of Britain ............................................................................................................. 171
7.6 Conclusions and Routes for Further Research ..................................................................................... 174

Bibliography ............................................................................................................................................... 178

Appendix A: Shortlist of Data Recorded for Each Case Study ................................................................. 190
Appendix B: Detailed Maps of the Route Taken for Each Case Study ..................................................... 192
Appendix C: Digitised Data Sheets Recorded for Each Site ..................................................................... 201

Appendix D:
Individual Surviving Pre-Reformation Church Dedications...................................................................... 264

Appendix E: Religious houses in Norfolk, Wiltshire, Hampshire, Denbighshire, Flintshire and Cornwall, as recorded by Knowles & Hadock in 'Religious Houses of England & Wales' (1953) .......................................................... 282

Appendix F: Catalogue of Ampullae from Portable Antiquities Scheme Database with Motifs Relating to Walsingham ........................................................................................................................................... 287

Appendix G: Catalogue of Pilgrim Badges from Portable Antiquities Scheme Database with Motifs Definitely Relating to Walsingham (Excluding the London Waterfront Cluster) .......................................................... 292
Figure 69. Seal of St Asaph Cathedral showing St Winefride with crozier and reliquary ................................................................. 114
Figure 70. Map displaying distribution of church, well and spring sites dedicated to St Winefride and her uncle St Beuno. .................. 114
Figure 71. Chart Showing Frequency of Universal Saint Dedications .................................................................................................. 115
Figure 72. Chart Showing Frequency of Local Saint Dedications .................................................................................................... 115
Figure 73. Map showing location of bridges in relation to St Asaph .................................................................................................. 117
Figure 74. Radius of view from Offa’s Dyke into the Clwyd valley with sight line to St Asaph cathedral ............................................. 117
Figure 75. Map displaying visual interplay between sites around and including the Maen Achwyfan Cross ........................................ 118
Figure 76. Map showing sites at Holywell, and visual interaction between sites .................................................................................. 119
Figure 77. Map of Cornwall displaying the uplands .......................................................................................................................... 123
Figure 78. Map of early mining sites in Cornwall, according to data from the Cornwall & Scilly Historic Environment Record ................ 124
Figure 79. Distribution of post 11th century Medieval religious houses in Cornwall. ............................................................................. 125
Figure 80. Distribution of Free and Villein (peasant or serf) Messuages in the Camelford Borough in the 14th Century ......................... 129
Figure 81. Route taken from Camelford to Bodmin including key sites .............................................................................................. 129
Figure 82. Map of central Bodmin with relevant sites marked. ............................................................................................................ 131
Figure 83. 1881 OS Map of central Bodmin. ................................................................................................................................. 132
Figure 84. Fragments of sculpted masonry from the Bodmin Priory. ................................................................................................. 133
Figure 85. 12th century ivory casket which contained the relics of St Petroc, now in the Bodmin church of St Petroc. ......................... 135
Figure 86. St Petroc’s Well in Priory Park. ............................................................................................................................................ 135
Figure 87. Remains of the Chapel of St Thomas Becket. ....................................................................................................................... 136
Figure 88. St Guron’s Wellhouse and trough ....................................................................................................................................... 137
Figure 89. Berry Tower and its visibility from the northern approach to Bodmin .................................................................................. 138
Figure 90. Distribution of reputed St Petroc relics in England (not concurrently) during the Medieval period. ................................. 140
Figure 91. Map of Camelford with relevant sites marked. .................................................................................................................... 141
Figure 92. St Juliot’s Well, near Camelford and Lanteglos parish church. ............................................................................................. 142
Figure 93. St Adwenna’s church in circular graveyard within field system. ........................................................................................... 143
Figure 94. Free Standing Wheel Cross near Advent Church. ................................................................................................................ 144
Figure 95. Aerial image of Carwether DMV and ground level appearance facing east towards Bodmin Moor ......................... 145
Figure 96. Holy Well at St Breward’s ................................................................................................................................................. 146
Figure 97. Map of Dedications to St Petroc in Cornwall. .................................................................................................................... 147
Figure 98. Map of the route taken out of Camelford, following the Camel River. ............................................................................. 149
Figure 99. Camel River valley floor with route and St Adwenna’s church. ............................................................................................ 150
Figure 100. St Adwenna’s church in relation to the route, and the free standing cross. ................................................................. 150
Figure 101. Map of Carwether and Upland section and view from uplands east to Bodmin Moor. .................................................... 151
Figure 102. The southern approach to St Breward and the locations of the church and well sites. .................................................. 152
Figure 103. The journey through the woodlands, and the exiting ascent into the uplands of Helland Parish. ................................. 153
Figure 104. The path through the woodlands in the Camel River valley floor during early February. .............................................. 154
Figure 105. The approach to Bodmin. The larger black circle is the radius of visibility for the Berry Tower. ................................. 155
Figure 106. ‘Hunters in the Snow’ by Pieter Bruegel, 1565. ................................................................................................................ 164
Figure 107. Ely Cathedral rising out of the fenland mists. .................................................................................................................... 164
Figure 108. The July panel from the Très Riches Heures du Duc de Berry, 1489, showing the beginnings of the harvest. ..................... 166
Figure 109. The Maen Achwyfan Cross along the St Asaph to Holywell route, Flintshire. ............................................................. 167
Figure 110. Examples of flowers which bear relations to saints in plantlore .................................................................................... 169
Figure 111. Christian labyrinth motif, used within Chartres Cathedral. ............................................................................................. 171